

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

MP Romeo Saganash, Ryan McMahon, & over forty presentations taking place at the University of Ottawa June 15-17 during the national conference on "The Future of First Nations, Inuit, and Métis Broadcasting"

OTTAWA (ONTARIO), JUNE 13, 2017 /PRESS RELEASE/ – According to its Three-Year Plan 2017-2020, the Canadian Radio-television and Telecommunications Commission (CRTC) will review the Native Broadcasting Policy (CRTC 1990-89) next year. The gatherings entitled "The Future of First Nations, Inuit and Métis Broadcasting" aim to bring practitioners, policy makers and academics together as allies to prepare a context for respectful and meaningful consultation. The national event in Ottawa will continue the conversation by sharing the outcomes from five regional events, over forty presentations, and keynote speeches by MP Romeo Saganash (Abitibi-Baie James-Nunavik-Eeyou) and Ryan McMahon (Makoons Media Group).

Discussion Topics: The CRTC Process & CRTC Policy

1. How would you like the CRTC consultation process to be conducted?
2. How should the review process itself be changed?
3. What should the policy entail?
4. What are the elements to include or exclude?
5. What changes could be required to the 1991 Broadcasting Act to ensure the policy is upheld?

See Native Radio Policy - CRTC Public Notice 1990-89

(<http://crtc.gc.ca/eng/archive/1990/PB90-89.htm>)

The national event will take place in Ottawa, Ontario, from June 15-17, 2017, in the Alex Trebek Alumni Building (University of Ottawa, 157 Séraphin-Marion Private). Participants are invited to register online at www.IndigenousRadio.ca.

POUR DISTRIBUTION IMMÉDIATE

Député Romeo Saganash, Ryan McMahon et plus de quarante présentations auront lieu à l'Université d'Ottawa du 15 au 17 juin dans le cadre de la conférence nationale « Le futur de la radiodiffusion des Premières Nations, des Inuits et des Métis »

OTTAWA (ONTARIO), 13 JUIN 2017 / COMMUNIQUÉ DE PRESSE / – Selon son plan triennal 2017-2020, le Conseil de la radiodiffusion et des télécommunications canadiennes (CRTC) révisera la politique en matière de radiotélédiffusion autochtone (CRTC 1990-89) l'an prochain. Les événements intitulés « Le futur de la radiodiffusion des Premières Nations, des Inuits et des Métis » cherchent à rassembler des praticiens, des décideurs politiques et des chercheurs en tant qu'alliés afin de préparer un contexte respectueux et significatif où effectuer des consultations. L'événement national à Ottawa permettra de poursuivre la conversation en partageant les résultats des cinq événements régionaux et en offrant plus de quarante présentations ainsi que des discours prononcés, entre autres, par le député Romeo Saganash (Abitibi-Baie James-Nunavik-Eeyou) et Ryan McMahon (Makoons Media Group).

Sujets de discussion: Le processus et la politique du CRTC

1. Comment aimeriez-vous que le processus de consultation du CRTC soit mené?
2. Comment le processus d'examen lui-même doit-il être modifié?
3. Que doit comporter la politique?
4. Quels sont les éléments à inclure ou à exclure?
5. Quels changements faudrait-il apporter à la Loi sur la radiodiffusion, 1991, pour s'assurer que la politique soit maintenue?

Friday June 16th at 10:00 a.m. in Alex Trebek Alumni Hall

Commissioner Chen-Ling Hung, National Communications Commission in Taiwan, is Professor from Graduate Institute of Journalism, National Taiwan University. She got her PhD from Pennsylvania State University. Her research interests include communications law and policy, citizen journalism, indigenous media, and political economy of communication. Before pursuing the academic career, she worked as a reporter of newspapers and magazines for several years. She also worked with media reform organizations in Taiwan, putting her knowledge into social actions. She started her four-year term as NCC commissioner since August 1, 2016. NCC, an independent regulatory agency in Taiwan, is responsible for regulating both telecommunications and broadcasting media services. Its missions include ensuring effective competition in the market, safeguarding public interests, promoting the development of communications services, and thereby enhancing the nation’s competitiveness. This year, the NCC works on formulating the Telecommunications Management Act and the Digital Communication Act in response to convergence of technology and industries. To ensure people's right of communications, the NCC also plans to allocate spectrum and issue licenses to radio operators including a national indigenous radio.

KEYNOTE BY MP ROMEO SAGANASH

Presentation Title: The right to self-determination & Indigenous media policy
(in French, translation to English is available)

Time & Location: Friday June 16th at 11:45 a.m. in Alex Trebek Alumni Hall

MP Romeo Saganash has represented the citizens of Abitibi–Baie-James–Nunavik–Eeyou since 2011. He was the first Aboriginal MP elected in Quebec, and he’s determined to get results for this community. In his time in office, Romeo has served as NDP critic for Energy and Natural Resources, International Development, and as deputy critic for Intergovernmental Aboriginal Affairs. Romeo was born in 1961 in Waswanipi. In 1985, at the age of 23, he founded the Cree National Youth Council. He became involved in the economic development of his region working with businesses such as Creeco Inc. and the Eeyou Society of James Bay. In 1989, Romeo became the first Cree graduate to obtain a Bachelor of Law in Quebec. Between 1990 and 1993, he was Deputy Grand Chief of the Grand Council of the Crees and then Vice-Chairman of the Cree Regional Authority. Beginning in 1993, he was Director of Quebec Relations and International Affairs for the Grand Council of the Crees. In 1997, he chaired the James Bay Advisory Committee on the Environment. In 2003, he received an award of recognition from UQAM for his role in the negotiations that led to the signing of the Paix des Braves on February 7, 2002, between the Quebec government and the Grand Council of the Crees.

PROFESSOR LORNA ROTH

Presentation and discussion with Dr. Lorna Roth (Concordia University)

Presentation Title: Researching Indigenous Media Practices and Policing in Canada - Challenges and Futures

Time & Location: Friday June 16th at 1:30 p.m. in Alex Trebek Alumni Hall

Prior to working as a university-based scholar, Lorna Roth was involved in a range of indigenous, communication-related experimental and demonstration projects in the North sponsored by the NFB and the federal government (1970's and 1980's), as well as with several of the 13 Northern Native Communication Societies. Years later, while studying for her MA (McGill) and later her PhD (Concordia), Lorna continued collaborating with First Peoples across Canada doing teacher training, media training (television and radio broadcasting), policy lobbying, radio program and station development in Kahnawake and Kanehsatake, audience research aimed toward the development of a children's television service for the Inuit Broadcasting Corporation, national Northern Native Broadcast Access Program evaluation, and many other contractual projects. She was also involved as a producer and host in the CKUT Women's program collective, Matrix. Having graduated from Concordia University's Department of Communication Studies herself, Lorna now teaches Indigenous Peoples' Media Development and Race, Ethnicity and Media courses as a full professor in all 4 of their programs of study. Lorna thoroughly enjoys participatory action research, self-reflexive ethnography, and interviewing and continues to experiment with these qualitative methodologies in her field projects. Since "becoming" an academic, Lorna has consolidated her indigenous communication research in a book called "Something New in the Air: The Story of First Peoples' Television Broadcasting in Canada" (McGill-Queens, 2005). She continues to closely follow with interest the expansion and deepening of Indigenous cross-platform media development as it has transformed from the position of media reservation to that of national media citizen. Lorna's more recent work focuses on skin colour and the ways in which race (skin colour), and culturally-inflected design decisions are linked together in technologies and products that have a sense of flesh as central to their representation.

Presentation Title: iPhones, Bush Tea & Dibajimowinan - Reflections on the Intersection
Between Indigenous Knowledge, Technology & Storytelling

Time & Location: Saturday June 17th at 2:30 p.m. in Alex Trebek Alumni Hall

Ryan McMahon, CEO of the Makoons Media Group, is an Anishinaabe comedian, writer, media maker & community activator based out of Treaty #1 territory (Winnipeg, MB). Armed with a degree in Theatre & as a graduate of the prestigious Second City Conservatory (Toronto), Ryan's comedic storytelling style is fast paced, loose & irreverent as he explores the good, the bad & the ugly between Indian Country & the mainstream. Since 2010, McMahon has recorded 3 National comedy specials (Welcome To Turtle Island Too, UnReserved & Red Man Laughing) & 2 taped Gala sets at the prestigious Winnipeg Comedy Festival. In 2012, McMahon became the 1st Native comedian to ever record a full mainstream comedy special with CBC TV (Ryan McMahon - UnReserved) and later that year made his debut at the prestigious Just For Laughs Festival in Montreal, QC where he was named to the NEW FACES list at the festival. Ryan's latest full length CBC comedy special, Red Man Laughing, aired nationally on CBC Radio 1 in 2015. McMahon's new live show, Wreck-On Silly Nation, is scheduled to tour across Canada in 2017. It tackles massive themes like reconciliation, Canada's 150th birthday party & the intricacies of moose meat pie. Ryan has written for the GLOBE & MAIL, VICE, CBC, CBC Aboriginal, APTN among others.
